Noise

We live in constant chaos: cell phones ring, PDAs buzz, e-mails fly through cyberspace and information assaults your customers from all directions, 24/7.

In fact, according to the Newspaper Association of America, the average American is bombarded with more than three thousand marketing messages every day.

How do you make your message stand out? Cassel International specializes in every aspect of cutting-edge marketing and communications.

Every business has unique marketing needs, whether it's an established company or a start-up. Cassel International develops affordable, results-oriented plans and programs to meet your goals and exceed your expectations.

We work with our clients to understand their business and products/services, and then create a marketing communications plan which leads to tangible results.

Our services include marketing research and planning, advertising, collateral materials, annual reports, presentations, exhibit management, and public relations.
